Editor's Note

Happy June Saints!! We've finally hit the halfway mark of a very eventful year so far. We thank God through it all.

My brethren, count it all joy when you fall into various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces patience. But let patience have its perfect work, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking nothing.
James 1:2-4 NKJV

2020 has thrown us a few curve balls but it is nothing beyond what the Omnipotent one can handle. Nothing happening around our world today is a surprise to Yahweh. The Omniscient one knows All and can handle All! Let these times draw us to Him, looking to Him for strength and wisdom.

If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach, and it will be given to him.
James 1:5 NKJV

In this month's magazine, we explore the timely issue of living by faith. What is faith and how can we correctly appropriate it in this seemingly precarious times? We also feature a testimony from our sister in the Lord Priscilla (Pjay) Gwanzura, who overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacles to attain her master's degree as a single working mum, all the while leaning on God's promise for strength and courage. Glory to God!

Brethren, may we continue to encourage one another and indeed our families, workplaces and communities. Let us be conduits of God's presence, where His presence is there is light and darkness cannot comprehend it. Be blessed in this year of Jubilee!

We love you but Jesus loves you more.

LIVING BY FAITH

Habakkuk 2:1-4 NKJV

"I will stand my watch And set myself on the rampart, And watch to see what He will say to me, And what I will answer when I am corrected. Then the Lord answered me and said: "Write the vision And make it plain on tablets, That he may run who reads it. For the vision is yet for an appointed time; But at the end it will speak, and it will not lie. Though it tarries, wait for it; Because it will surely come, It will not tarry. "Behold the proud, His soul is not upright in him; But the just shall live by his faith."

The heavenly Father also refers to Himself as I Am. I Am is present continuous tense. Consequently, faith is now. The faith I engaged and applied yesterday, is responsible for my present circumstance. The faith I apply today will propel me to tomorrow's station in life.

In the preceding chapter, Habakkuk the prophet is deliberating on some existential questions. At the beginning of the second chapter, Habakkuk decides to wait on God as he expectedly awaits a response to his deliberations. His act of waiting expectedly is a demonstration of faith. Habakkuk understood that the world and all of creation including everyone in it was formed by God. He recognised God as the Omniscient one; knowing all. Habakkuk new that God would demystify things and bring clarity to his thoughts.

Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed. And in Your book they all were written, The days fashioned for me, When as yet there were none of them. Psalms 139:16 NKJV

The decade is still in its dawn and the year is just approaching the halfway mark. A lot of unprecedented events have unfolded at the turn of this decade that have attempted to throw everything in a tailspin. It is important to remember that nothing surprises the Omniscient one. He sits outside time looking into time. Events do not catch Him unexpected. He is not a man to lie neither the son of man to repent. What He said at the dawn of the year and indeed the decade still stands. Our role is to investigate what has been written in His book concerning our lives in this season. What is Heaven's plan for us? His plan is truth. His plan is reality in spite of everything else going on around us. The just are those who use Heaven's blueprint for their lives as their guide and positioning system akin to a navigator. They yield and align themselves to His plan. Their actions and life are in response to the Word of God concerning them.

When God speaks and you believe and take action based on this belief, your life will begin to reflect the fruit of your righteous choices.

Faith is the the daily expression of the human experience to the dictates of heaven
~ Ps Amoaye

For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also. James 2: 16 NKJV

According to James, we do not do to become, rather, we are and hence we do.

For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, "The just shall live by faith". Romans 1: 17 NKJV

Paul was concurring with what Habakkuk had expressed in earlier books. God is revealed as we embrace and engage His Word decisively in faith. Our actions are anchored in our belief in who He is and not informed by our human frailty.

Faith is the obedient action to God's word
~ Ps Amoaye

"God is faithful, by whom you were called into the fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord".

I CORINTHIANS 1: 9 NKJV

God is Faithful

When living by faith, we need to imbibe this notion down to the very fabric of our being. God has placed His Word above His name. His integrity is the pillar upon which all existence stands.

He who calls you is faithful, who also will do it.
1 Thessalonians 5: 24 NKJV

His call to you was intentional. He wired you with innate capabilities to execute your created assignment. We do our part as surrendered vessels so that God can accomplish His purpose through us. We avail ourselves and prepare based on our belief in His faithfulness. Nothing is impossible to Him who called you.

Praise the Lord, all you nations; extol him, all you peoples. For great is his love toward us, and the faithfulness of the Lord endures forever. Praise the Lord. Psalm 117: 1-2 NIV

God is faithful forever. Government policies change according to the political party in power. The government of Heaven has no leadership change. What He promised you through His Word does not change. He is faithful forever. He will keep His end of the deal, the only variable is you and I. Because His faithfulness is forever, you can make long term plans based on His Word. You can put All your eggs in His basket. His Word is sure. The best decision any of us can make is to stake our lives on Him.

Know therefore that the Lord your God is God; he is the faithful God, keeping his covenant of love to a thousand generations of those who love him and keep his commandments. But those who hate him he will repay to their face by destruction; he will not be slow to repay to their face those who hate him. Therefore, take care to follow the commands, decrees and laws I give you today.

Deuteronomy 7:9 -11 NIV

Deuteronomy was written by Moses. Moses was a rare breed. He grew up in pharaoh's palace, surrounded by ostentatious wealth from the world's superpower of the time. He had the best education, the finest garments and everything at his beck and call. Strangely, in spite of his privileged upbringing, he still could empathize with the lowly and downtrodden. This attribute would lead to his self exile after killing an Egyptian in an attempt to break up a fight. Moses would live the next forty years in the backwoods looking after sheep, a far cry from pharaoh's ritzy palace.

Moses had experientially lived through two worlds at the opposite spectrum of each other. Moses was a man that walked so closely with God that he spoke face to face with the Almighty. In the above scripture, Moses is in the sunset of what has been an exceptionally storied life and he is laying emphasis on crucial aspects of the law. One of his key takeaways from his walk with God is that He is faithful even to a thousand generations. In biblical language, a day is like a thousand years and a thousand years is like a day.

But, beloved, do not forget this one thing, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

2 Peter 3: 8 NKJV

A thousand years is a full day in God. With God there is no darkness. His light overcomes any darkness. A full day with the Lord is one where the manifestation of His nature is made manifest. Depression, lack, sickness and the shackles of this fallen world are broken. This full day is available to those who are obedient to His commandments. Obedience is the love language of God. Obedience is a response to the truth of God as is faithfulness. The unfaithful similarly will reap just reward for their actions or inactions. The principle of sowing and reaping in kind is ingrained in creation.

Do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap.

Galatians 6: 7 NKJV

Faithfulness is fidelity to the Word of God. Nobody can believe and engage God's Word for you by proxy. Moses had seen time and time again, God do exactly as He had said He would. David, who God considered a man after His own heart, declared;

I have been young, and now am old; Yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken, Nor his descendants begging bread.

Psalms 37: 25 NKJV

GOD REQUIRES Us to be Faithful

God expects us to live responsibly. God is the owner and we are His stewards. God expects faithful stewardship. When we are faithful, God will entrust us as stewards.

He who is faithful in what is least is faithful also in much; and he who is unjust in what is least is unjust also in much. Luke 16:10 NKJV

What you have at this moment is immaterial, God's concern is what you do with what you have. This is the litmus test of stewardship.

Therefore if you have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches? Luke 16:11 NKJV

How do we act when nobody is looking? What is our attitude to the doors God has opened for us today? Saints, for example, if one is consistently late to work and their execution at this place of employment is lackadaisical at best, one delays their entry into the place of promise they were born to occupy. If we turn a deaf ear to a physically present supervisor, how much more will we hid the inner witness of The Holy Spirit? Our attitude to life in the secular world has an impact on our position in the spiritual world.

And if you have not been faithful in what is another man's, who will give you what is your own? Luke 16:12 NKJV

Brethren, let us do everything as unto the Lord, living our life before the audience of one (Yahweh).

Faithfulness Births Increase

Matthew 25: 23 NKJV

“His Lord said to him, ‘Well done, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things. Enter into the joy of your Lord.’”

Those who are faithful when ruled will be faithful in positions of power and influence. Faithfulness as a servant attracts the promotion favour of God. Those who hid instructions are qualified to give instructions. When we allow the King of Kings to rule with us then we qualify to rule with Him. If He does not rule in you, He cannot rule through you. Increase and promotion come when we resolve in our hearts to submit to His authority.

Fantasy excites but it does not bear fruit.

My eyes shall be on the faithful of the land, That they may dwell with me; He who walks in a perfect way, He shall serve me.

Psalm 101: 6 NKJV

Your faithfulness attracts favour from the Lord. The eyes of the Lord being upon you is synonymous to His favour. Essentially, your greatness is not based on who you visit but rather who visits you. When the eyes of the Lord are upon you, His ‘weight’ or kabod will be with you. His unmistakable presence will affect and influence everything and everyone you come across.

Every prophecy not grounded in scripture is fantasy

PROPHETIC DECREES AND DECLARATIONS

I decree and declare that no weapon fashioned against you shall prosper! I will step out boldly according to His Word for my life. No venture will render me insolvent. My investments are secure! My family is secure!

I decree and declare that you shall be favoured in the name of Jesus. His presence shall be upon you and with you wherever you go.

This year, I am marching forward. I am taking possession of that which is rightfully mine in the name of Jesus.

Real People

Real Testimonies

I arrived in Sydney in the 1st of January 2014. I drove 12 hours from Brisbane to Sydney with my then 3-year-old daughter. I was determined to start afresh after life hadn't gone the way I hoped it would go.

I remember stopping to stretch on the highway somewhere close to Taree. I read a sign that said Sydney 300 km's. At that moment in time I remember thinking to myself that I was crazy and wanted to turn around. However, I had driven so far turning around now wasn't an option. My daughter and I got back into the car and continued with our journey where we only knew my great aunt and her daughter (my aunt). Just after 12 midnight we arrived where we would be staying. I didn't have a job but I was determined to make it. I shared a house with 2 other people. Over the next 6 weeks I applied for jobs and didn't get a response until one day a lady I had emailed before I left Queensland got back to me and asked me if I had arrived in Sydney. She told me that she had some work for me. That was great news. I started working but it was very slow. I only worked 15 hours a fortnight. I wasn't familiar with Sydney so I would get lost a lot and my phone at the time didn't have a good navigation app. I got lost close to home one day but whilst I was lost I saw an aged care centre. After 3 days I walked into that aged care centre and I asked for an application form. I was told that they weren't hiring at that moment in time but I was still given the application form. A few days later I returned my application form with my resume attached. I didn't hear anything from them for 3 weeks! They eventually called and I was asked to come in for an interview.

My interview started with a tour around the facility and then we went back to the managers office. I had no experience working as a nurse. I had graduated 6 months prior and hadn't been able to find a job as an EN in Brisbane. The manager told me that she was going to give me chance and hired me. I left there feeling as though I was on cloud nine. 2 weeks later I started working. I remember every morning I would listen to 'Never would have made it by Marvin Sapp' and I would feel encouraged. Working as a nurse meant I had to do morning and afternoon shifts. Mornings were easy because I took my daughter to childcare slightly earlier than the other kids and picked her up afterwards. Afternoons meant I had to ask someone to watch her between 6 and 10pm. In this case it was the manager from the childcare centre. When I went to look for a place for Faith I had a chat with the lady and I told her I didn't have much support with looking after Faith as both my aunts lived further away from me. The manager said that if I needed help with Faith she would do that for me as she was also a single Mum and she knew how difficult it would be. We agreed on a fair rate that I would pay her each week for the extra care. As time went by I started meeting people and making friends. Some of these friends became my family and would later on help me with looking after my daughter.

When Faith started school I was able to find a babysitter who would pick her up from school 2 days a week and stay with her until I had finished work at 2130 meaning I would only get home at 2200. One day my Dad called me and asked me what my plans were for the future. I'm not sure how I responded but I probably just said work for the next couple of years. He suggested that I do a Master of Business Administration. Studying wasn't something that I wanted to do at that moment in time but I figured I would just apply to make him happy. I thought that since I hadn't been to University in 8 years, I probably wouldn't be accepted then I would just tell my Dad I wasn't accepted and that would be the end of it. I submitted my application and they asked for my transcripts including those from TAFE. I had to make calls to my previous Uni and TAFE to ask my transcripts as I had misplaced the other ones. They said it would take at least a week for the transcripts to arrive which was fine. After 2 weeks, I received another letter in the mail from the University telling me that I had been accepted into the MBA program. How was this even possible? I hadn't even sent my transcripts. There was no backing down now- I had to do my MBA. The program ran for 2 years full time or 4 years part time. I opted to do it part-time as I was working and looking after my daughter on my own. I began my program in April 2016. I had my classes in Parramatta once a week from 6-10pm. My friends, their parents and my aunts (older women who I had developed relationships with) looked after my daughter during this period in time. During Power Conference 2017, I received a prophecy from Mayor Moore. He spoke to me privately as he prayed for me and he told me that I shouldn't worry about school and that I would finish on time. At that moment in time I was doubting whether I actually had the ability to complete the course. Over the years I had to remind myself of this prophecy because there were days that I wanted to give up.

In September 2017, I got employed by NSW Health. This meant that doing night shift was now compulsory. My work roster was always scheduled in such a way that I would have class and work on the same night. Those days were hectic as I would pick Faith up from school, get her ready for the night, have dinner, pack a bag, drop her off and make my way to uni. I would leave class earlier so I could get ready for work. I was received a lot of support during that time which I'm forever grateful for. I felt guilty that I was working at various hours of the day and missing out my child's development so I started looking for a new job and in March 2018 I started working a 9-5 job which meant I was able to take my daughter to school in the morning and pick her up afterwards. I was also able to do homework with her and spend more time together.

I continued with my studies and in my final year things became more challenging. I had to do a business project over 6 months which meant instead of taking one unit at a time I did 2 units a semester. My friends would look after Faith twice a week whilst I was at uni. In July 2019 my grandfather suddenly died. It was a week before I was scheduled to travel to Zimbabwe to do some research for my business project and as part of my friend's bridal party. I was devastated. I wanted to be there with my family especially my mother but I was unable to change my flight. I flew home the next week. I had 2 assignments due soon which I thought I would be able to do once I got home but I was in for a surprise. There was no electricity during the day and it would come back on at night when most people are sleeping. There was also a fuel shortage so using the generator all day wasn't an option. I also had to spend time with my family who were grieving and had bridesmaid duties to fulfill. I was only home for 2 weeks and it flew by quickly. I asked for an extension for both my assignments from my lecturers so I was allowed to submit my assignments a week after I got back to Sydney. When I came back I started to grieve again on my own. I was very close to my grandfather and the thought of not being able to see him again really hurt but I had to be strong and get myself together so that I could complete my program. My mother and father also continued to encourage me with prayers and cheering me on. My Dad would always say how he is looking forward to graduation so we can celebrate 'OUR' MBA together. He calls it his MBA because he planted the seed My mother would always quote bible verses such as Philippians 4 vs 6. I know that Papa and Mama prayed for me and during meetings Papa would remind me that with God all things are possible (Matthew 19: 24). GPM is raising champions so I had to also tell myself that I'm part of GPM and I too can be a champion.

I completed my studies in December 2019 and was due to graduate in April 2020. Unfortunately, COVID-19 postponed graduation. I received my certificate at the beginning of May. All of this wouldn't have been possible without God who gave me strength (Philippians 4 vs 13) and hope when I wanted to give up, my parents who have always supported me throughout my life, Papa and Mama who have taught me so much about God and have opened my eyes to how prayer can change your life, my Sydney family, friends and aunts who looked after Faith so that I could work and study. I am also grateful to my friends in Brisbane and Adelaide who encouraged me to keep going on days that I wanted to give up. Thank you all so much. To God be the glory.

The preservation of GOD

Oh, love the Lord, all you His saints! For the Lord preserves the faithful, And fully repays the proud person. Psalms 31: 23 NKJV

Faithfulness attracts the preservation of God. A faithful saint is one on God's assignment for their life. Consequently, their life cannot be snuffed out before they fulfil purpose.

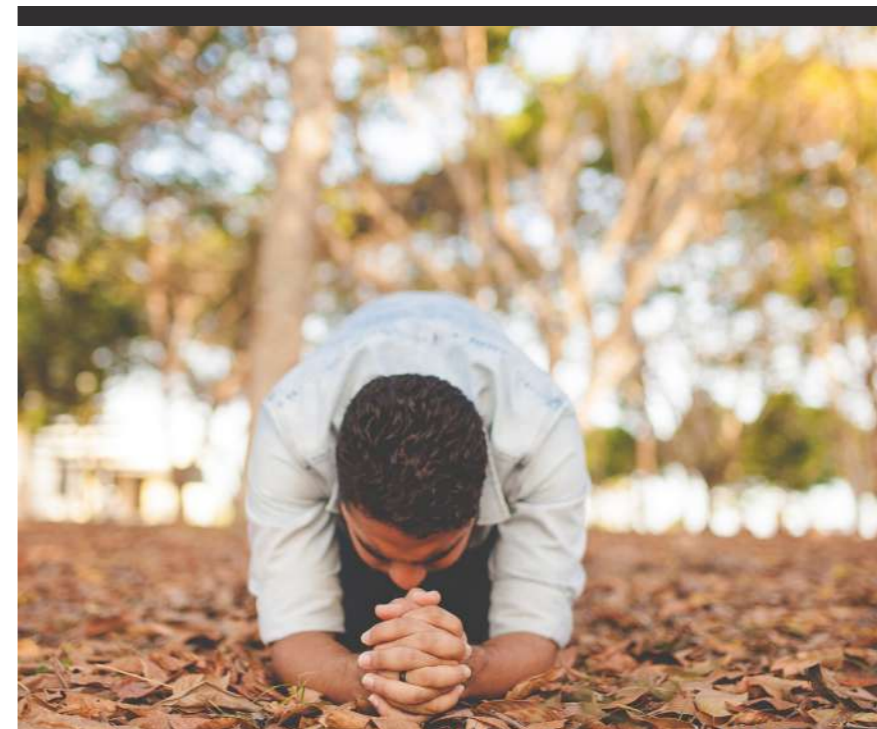

Brethren, no weapon fashioned against you shall prosper! If you believe this, step out boldly according to His Word for your life. No venture will render you insolvent. Your investments are secure! Your family is secure! Fear of perceived loss brings stagnation in many Christians lives. Growth only happens outside your comfort zone. God is omnipresent, even in the areas outside your comfort. Venture out in faith!

let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for He who promised is faithful. Hebrews 10: 22- 23 NKJV

Saints, let's resolve that in June and indeed for the remainder of this year, we shall be Christocentric. We shall have the mind of Christ and apply it in everything we do. Let us resolve to consciously draw closer to God. We achieve this through prayer, meditation and intentionally spending time with our heavenly Father.

And let us consider one another in order to stir up love and good works Hebrews 10: 24 NKJV

Brethren, let us reflect the nature and nurture of God to those around us. Let them see and feel the heart and love of Christ through us. A thoughtful gesture can turn a frown upside down and make someone's day. The Word is not just text but we are the church (called out ones) and need to be living epistles. Our lives may be the only Word someone will witness and that alone may bring conviction and win not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as is the manner of some, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the Day approaching. Hebrews 10: 25 NKJV

As restrictions begin to ease around Australia and much of the world, the doors to places of worship will reopen. Let us resolve to be more plugged in with our local church. If there's one lesson the pandemic has taught us, it is the privilege of gathering in one accord; to praise His name and to fellowship alongside each other. None of us have all the attributes internally that it will take to fulfil God's divine assignment. God designed it this way. We complement one another and that is the beauty and strength of community. Each member of the body is vital for optimum function where our neighbour's strength can cover our weakness and vice versa to the glory of God.

THROUGH THE EYES OF GOD: Homage to a Kingdom Chapion

I have shared that my mother once brought an astrologer to our house to read our palms and tell us our future. Examining my hands, the soothsayer confidently pronounced that I would not travel far or much in my life. “That’s what the lines on your hand tell me. There is no future for you abroad.”

I was deeply disappointed to hear this, but oh, how mistaken he was! After 45 years of spanning the globe and speaking in countless countries, I am persuaded that God alone, the Grand Weaver, knows our future and knits our lives. He has brought lasting change not only in my own life but in my family as well. Sometimes this has happened seemingly instantaneously; hearing Jesus’s words in John 14:19, “Because I live, you also will live,” literally brought me from the brink of death in a hospital room to new life. Other times, such as in the remarkable conversion of my father years later, many seeds were planted prior, but the change was no less profound.

I recall, too, that I was never much of a reader growing up, preferring to watch movies or discuss issues with people. I very rarely picked up a book out of interest. But then one evening in my late teens, and a few months since coming to Christ on a bed of suicide, I walked out the back door of our house and saw something lying on top of the garbage heap in the alley. As I looked closer, I saw it was a book with no cover—an old, tattered copy of a volume I realized my dad must have thrown out.

Curious, I picked it up and read the title page: The Epistle to the Romans: A Commentary by a man named W. H. Griffith Thomas. I had no idea who this author was, but my hunger was so fierce that I immediately opened it and began to read. Over the next few days, I devoured that book—of all things, a Bible commentary! It became a treasure, and I still have the tattered copy of that commentary in my possession.

Just like that, I was plunged into a world I’d never known—the world of reading. One of the first volumes I was presented with was The Cross and the Switchblade, an amazing story of the conversion of Nicky Cruz the gang leader and of the work God was doing in the lives of such young people through the ministry of David Wilkerson. I loved the book so much that I began seeking out biographies. I lapped up the stories of William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army; David Brainerd, the missionary to American Indians; and, most intriguing of all to me, C. T. Studd, the English cricketer who gave up everything to become a missionary. Studd had been the captain of Cambridge’s cricket team, had turned down an opportunity to play for his country, and even refused his family inheritance—all to help take the gospel into China and India.

As I read about these inspiring lives, the old adage became true for me: “Fire begets fire.” The standards these Christians set by their examples raised the bar for me. Though I later learned, as I grew in my faith, that these saintly lives weren’t as perfect as their biographers made them out to be, the basic truths were undoubtedly in place, and their examples stoked my consciousness as to what the Christian life could be.

For the first time, I felt my mind being stretched—and I loved it. I realized that thinking could be fun, and with that simple realization I was sent headlong into the lifelong discipline of reading.

I also cannot say enough about the significance of the role that Youth for Christ (YFC) played in those early days of my conversion. On the day that I tried to take my life, it was these friends who prayed for me. A man named Fred David—sent, I would discover only recently, by YFC Asia director John Teibe, another gift from God—brought a Bible to my hospital room (and, by proxy, the words that breathed eternal life into my broken body). Both before and after my suicide attempt, they showed me that I meant something and that God loved me as an individual. It was my relationships at YFC that gave me hope of coming back to a caring group. And it was they who, as time passed, gave me opportunities for leadership.

So there it all was, the unlikely strands that came together, weaving the small patch of fabric that was my conversion: a soft-spoken man who drew me to the message of truth, a group waiting to share the love of Christ with me in my time of greatest need, a Bible brought to my mother for me, and a passage of Scripture that sprouted in the moisture of God’s sovereign grace. It all came together for me in the hospital room, but Youth for Christ is where those seeds were sown. I had now found a new home in my faith—and I could say I was finally home.

Along with everyone else, I wondered how such a turnaround could have taken place, and so swiftly. The key was that now I looked at life through a window of meaning. And that was the one thing I had been desperately longing for: meaning. Now everything in my life was packed with it: my studies had meaning, my family had meaning, my friendships had meaning, my sports had meaning.

All the things I had thought were the causes of my despair—my failing studies, my senseless wandering, my hopelessness—had actually been the results of my despair. The Austrian concentration camp survivor Viktor Frankl wrote, “Without meaning, nothing else matters. With meaning, everything else falls into place.” If you can’t see the why, you cannot live for the what. And as soon as I was able to answer the “why,” even my failures began to make sense.

The rapid changes taking place in me daily were beyond my power to describe. Yet, from everything I had learned in my life with Christ, I knew that He had not just changed what I did but what I wanted to do. One day, I had been a creature of despair, irresponsibility, and failure. Then I became a creature of hope, diligent and accomplished in the things to which I set my hand. To me, the reversal was staggering. Nobody fully understood the dramatic transformation on the inside. This was the work of God.

It was also a huge paradigm shift for me to suddenly see life—my own and others’—through the eyes of God. For years, I had looked at life the way a kid might work through a puzzling, new toy, taking it apart but not knowing how to put it back together again. He wonders, “What makes this thing tick?” So he takes a screwdriver and tries to unpack it, but with each piece he removes, it makes less sense.

Only Jesus could legitimately explain the multifarious strands of human personality locked within me. He could explain my emotional life, my actions, and my reactions. He could explain why I longed for human touch, and why it was actually the touch of soul that I was ultimately after. Without Christ, I still would have the gnawing undercurrent that had run through everything in my life and that had led me to the tragic choice that very nearly brought me to an end.

Jesus wasn’t just the best option to me; He was the only option. He provided the skin of reason to the flesh and bones of reality. His answers to life’s questions were both unique and true. No one else answered the deepest questions of the soul the way He did. And because Christianity was true, it was emotionally experienced. There was no greater example of this than my own life.

The story of my early days was that only God’s grace could have brought about this new life for me. This was a new DNA, a new birth. There simply was no other explanation. The songwriter George Wade Robinson said it well:

Heav’n above is softer blue, Earth around is sweeter green! Something lives in every hue Christless eyes have never seen; Birds with gladder songs o’erflow, Flow’rs with deeper beauties shine, Since I know, as now I know, I am His, and He is mine.

#Becoming the best you

“A greatest expression of love is becoming the best version of yourself.”

The book speaks to the idea of discovering your true self, strength and power for the future you desire long before you meet 'Mr Right' a.k.a 'Mr Boaz'. Inspired by the biblical story of Ruth, the book makes for a thought provoking read that will challenge you to be intentional, self-examine and develop all the facets of who you are.

For my single ladies All that I am is an opportunity to learn, grow, heal, discover who you are in God. For my married ladies it's an opportunity to rediscover, relearn heal, grow, and walk on the path God has for you. Men, it's an opportunity to learn something new.

1. What is the chapter that stood out for you?

My favourite chapter is chapter 2, which is about becoming your best. After I finished this chapter I felt hopeful that I still have “time” to become who God has destined me to be.

2. Did the book change your opinion or perspective about anything? Do you feel different now than before you read it?

The book is changing my perspective on growth and doesn't need to be done on a deadline. It is continuous and needs to be holistic, intentional and consistent for there to be “results”. In the past I have expected to see change in myself overnight and it has sometimes caused me to feel discouraged.

3. What would you say to someone who hasn't read the book yet?

I would recommend for anyone to read this book. It is a great read to realign your focus. This book will embolden you to take ownership of your preparation journey not only for marriage but your God given purpose.

Ps Lusia Talitha Cumi Solo is the First Lady Light of All Nations, Hamilton. She lives in New Zealand with her Husband and Kids.

1. What is the chapter that stood out for you?

I truly loved every chapter of the book, however Chapter 2 stood out for me, which is “Becoming your best”. I loved the fact that union is not just about feelings and emotions but rather a relationship and fulfilment of our God given purposes and destiny we share with our spouses.

2. Did the book change your opinion or perspective about anything? Do you feel different now than before you read it?

Yes! Most definitely. I loved how I can easily relate to Mama Patrice's real life experiences shared in her book. As a Pastors wife myself, there were many times I felt my husband was too occupied with his role as a Pastor and not with me, however after reading this masterpiece I've learnt that successful marriage is not only about “ME” and him doing things to keep me happy. It is much more than that, 2 people becoming one means that we both need to work together to see Gods promises in our lives come to pass, even if it means making big sacrifices. Most importantly, I've been challenged to discover the greatness (capability, seed, talents, gifts) in me to better understand Gods plans in my life and marriage.

3. What would you say to someone who hasn't read the book?

Find yourself first before you find your better half. If you have the chance to take a pre marriage course please do so. This book has opened my mind, spirit and soul to the importance of preparation before finding your Boaz.

1. What is the chapter that stood out for you?

My favourite chapter was chapter 6, on 'Your Body'. It is an often-overlooked part of preparation in Christian circles but in the book matters of exercise, cleanliness, style & presentation and sex were treated with refreshing frankness and applicable insight.

2. Did the book change your opinion or perspective about anything? Do you feel different now than before you read it?

The book definitely gave me a sense of the importance of practical and well-rounded preparation before marriage. I realised that some of the issues that we could end up taking to God later because we need an urgent solution could be better handled beforehand with practical, forward-looking and intentional growth of self.

3. What would you say to someone who hasn't read the book?

I would certainly encourage young men to also read the book. In order to be a responsible leader who is purposeful in union with your Ruth in the fullness of time it is necessary to be well-developed in the various aspects of preparation and wholeness the book teaches. At the core, the author's message is 'become the best version of yourself' and it is essential to all.

The Mystery Of Excellence:

LESSONS FROM THE EXPERIENCES OF SHECHEM

RICHARD AMOAYE

ABOUT THE BOOK

Prayer is a 'command' for all believers, yet for many it remains a mystery. It is a puzzle that has left many believers living in frustration because many prayers have seemingly gone unanswered.

Fortunately, our race, age, gender and social status has never mattered when it comes to getting answers to our prayers. The key to dealing with frustration from unanswered prayer lies in us understanding God's original intent when He designed prayer.

This book will help you prepare your mind to align with God's word regarding prayer by focusing on His will and purpose for your life. As you read it, may you be enlightened to approach Prayer with the guidance of the Holy Spirit!

RAM Programmes

We live in a time where we are most enlightened, educated and have the resources to live satisfied life's yet a lot of us live without hope. Our enlightenment fails in offering real solutions for many of the hopelessness we see in our world. This is because most of the issues that confront us have their source in the spiritual realm. As such, we need to be equipped to deal with the root causes instead of the symptoms. PROPHETIC ATMOSPHERE is designed not only to create an atmosphere conducive for possibilities but also empowers us to identify, disrupt and diffuse the enemy's agendas; and enforce God's will in our lives, families and world. Remember there is nothing like impossibility in the Realm of the Prophetic. That is why RAM's Prophetic Atmosphere Conferences (including our facebook livestream sessions held every thursday (7-8 pm AEST) and the RAM feed the homeless project held periodically are important

If you want Jesus Christ to be your Lord and Personal Saviour...

You May Say This Prayer With faith;

Heavenly Father,

I come to you in prayer asking for the forgiveness of my sins. I confess with my mouth and believe with my heart that Jesus Christ is your son, And that He died on the Cross at Calvary that I might be forgiven and have eternal Life in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Father, I believe that Jesus rose from death and I ask you right now to come in to my life and be my personal Lord and Saviour. I repent of my sins and will worship you all the days of my Life.

Because your word is truth, I confess with my mouth that I am born again and cleansed by the Blood of Jesus!

In Jesus name I pray with thanksgiving.

AMEN
